At ASTRA Plastic Surgery, expert surgeon's Christopher D. Killingsworth, MD, MBA, FACS, and Paul Daraei, MD, AAFPRS bring together complementary expertise grounded in precision, artistry, and patient trust. Their shared philosophy blends technical excellence with a deeply personal approach to care, creating an elevated surgical experience tailored to each individual.

For Dr. Killingsworth, the path to plastic surgery has always been driven by purpose and measurable impact. "Growing up, I wanted to make a meaningful difference in people's lives," he said. "Plastic surgery is one of the few specialties that allows meticulous attention to detail, creativity, and artistry alongside sound surgical principles." His practice focuses largely on full body refinement and mommy makeover procedures designed to restore the body following pregnancy. "Many of the changes that occur after childbirth simply cannot be addressed with exercise alone," he noted.

Dr. Daraei, a facial plastic surgeon, was drawn early to the intricacy and nuance of facial anatomy. "Facial plastic surgery combines refinement with complexity," he said. "My goal is to enhance the face while preserving the patient's natural identity." Practicing in Atlanta has further shaped that philosophy. "Atlanta values subtlety," Dr. Daraei explained. "Patients here appreciate natural, tailored, and thoughtful results."

Both physicians agree that trust is the foundation of long-term success. "Trust is built by consistently delivering on our promises," Dr. Killingsworth said. Dr. Daraei echoed that sentiment, emphasizing the importance of listening. "When you truly understand a patient's concerns, you can translate them into a surgical plan that achieves results aligned with their goals."

Anchored in the Atlanta community, expert surgeons Killingsworth and Daraei define the ASTRA Plastic Surgery experience through service, family, and education. For discerning patients, they are simply the specialists to see.
